

Dear FCC Chairman,

I think it unwise to allow the same, and increasingly few giant corporate owners, to control both television and newspaper information sources in a single market. American enterprise flourishes and thrives on competition, not on monopoly practices. I strongly oppose any policy which saturates a community with a single voice, it smacks of 'big brother' and stifles dissent and other points of view, which also must be heard so the public can make informed choices.

Sincerely, Craig Lucas
